St. Patrick's Day is Saturday, March 17, on the slight chance you didn't remember, and it's celebrated by people around the world who raise their glasses to the patron saint of Ireland and all that's green.

And there's no better way to celebrate than with a Guinness. After all, St. Patty's Day and Guinness go hand in hand as the stout is among the most popular brands of Irish beer.

Guinness dates back to 1759 in Dublin when Arthur Guinness founded the famous brewery. And now the company which dubbed St. Patrick's day "the friendliest day of the year," is inviting everyone to join the world's biggest party in an effort to achieve a Guinness World Record by pledging on their website to party responsibly in 2012.

After you take the pledge, head down to a local bar, pub, restaurant or a friend's home and celebrate with a cold one. Here are a few choice party spots.
