

July 12, 2017

Food & Beverage

WHERE'S THE FORK IN THE ROAD

"Restaurants: Where's the Fork in the Road?" is the subject when Out of the Question, The Hamptons' conversation salon, returns to the Southampton Arts Center Thursday evening for its third show of the season.

Warren Strugatch, the producer and host, will greet four top Long Island restaurateurs: Eric Lemonides, co-owner of Almond restaurants in Bridgehampton and Manhattan; Mark Smith, a partner in Nick & Toni's, La Fondita, and Rowdy Hall; David Loewenberg, who owns Bell & Anchor, the Beacon, and Fresno; and Guy Reuge, chef/founder of Mirabelle, Mirabelle Tavern, and Le Vin.

“Dining out is a competitive sport in The Hamptons, and our restaurant show is among our most popular shows every season,” Warren said. “People go to their restaurants and love the opportunity to talk with them about what goes on behind the scenes.”

The show starts at 7 PM, followed by a reception where restaurateurs mingle with the audience. For this program, the reception will feature desserts and small bites from the speakers. Visit OOTQ-show.com for tickets.