Dinner for Two on Valentine's Day 2018

GOOD EATS | anna halkidis | JANUARY 31, 2018

Cliché or not, Valentine's Day dinner hasn't lost its popularity. Several Long Island restaurants are adding to the appeal by offering delicious menus in their cozy settings. Make reservations, grab your significant other and head to any of these spots to kick romance up a notch.

Mirabelle Restaurant & Tavern, Stony Brook

The casual sibling of upscale Mirabelle is another gem from chef Guy Reuge. Kick back in the comfortable French bistro adorned with wooden tables, colorful paintings and a brick fireplace. For $69 a person, choose from a first course that includes six options like warm goat cheese salad and quail in a jar. Then choose from six main course options like grilled aged strip steak and lobster ravioli with Peconic Bay scallops. A choice of dessert is also served. Address: 150 Main St. / Phone: 631-751-0555 Click to eat
