Raise a Mimosa at Long Island New Year's Brunch 2017

GOOD EATS beth ann clyde | DECEMBER 26, 2016

Nothing gets Long Islanders out of bed quite like brunch, even if they stayed up way past their bedtimes the night before. Perhaps it's why it's become the unofficial first meal of the New Year around here. Cure with the hair of the dog, indulge in French toast (that diet starts Jan. 2) and raise one more flute at Long Island New Year's Brunch 2017.

Sandbar, Cold Spring Harbor

A warm start to the new year

Sandbar's coastal-casual ambiance is equal parts sleek and welcoming, particularly on a date when Jack Frost tends to nip at the nose. Warm up with an a la carte menu prepared by Chef Guy Reuge, who has consistently knocked it out of the park with classics like lobster eggs Benedict and sliced steak sandwiches. Keep with new-year-new-you vibes by opting for the The Sound instead of the typical mimosa. The popular brunch cocktail is mixed with Hendrick's, lime, basil and mint, making it a gloriously flavorful starting sipper. Go
