RESTAURANT WEEK APPROACHETH: The annual spring Long Island Restaurant Week kicks off Sunday. Through Sunday, April 30, restaurants across Long Island, including the Town of Huntington, will offer a three-course, prix fixe menu, offering plenty of tasty choices for foodies to make. Steve Haweeli, president of Long Island Restaurant & Marketing Hospitality Group, said this spring's campaign is expected to draw more than 150 participants. They'll offer a $29.95 menu each night of the week, but only 'til 7 p.m. on Saturday. "With more than 2.8 million residents and 1,000 restaurants with varied cuisines, concepts and price points, it is no wonder why we started the highly anticipated Long Island Restaurant Week," Haweeli added.
